Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Four Years of Camp, March and Battle Detailed by proper authority to recount to this Post of the Grand Army of the Republic my own army experience, I am here in obedience to the order, and will give you, as briefly as I may, a sketch of those events, all of which I saw, and part of which I was. The dulllest and most irksome period of a soldier s life is the time spent in the first camp of the regiment. Camps of rendezvous are regarded as necessary evils, to be just tolerated until the first marching orders come. The departure is a day of rejoicing. The incessant Left, Left, gives place to the hurry of preparation. Shouts of joy are heard, and mirth and jollity reign in every row of barracks. The 48th Ind. Vols. was no exception to the rule. There was an excellent drill-ground in Camp Ellis, where the regiment was organized, and very faithfully were its advantages improved. Week in, week out, from four to six hours a day, Sundays-excepted, it was one unvarying succession of squad, company, and battalion drill - a service which the soldier seldom fully appreciates until the battle-field shows him its utility. The men took hold of the work with considerable alacrity, but after awhile they began to clamor for a sight of the enemy. Our colors came from Indianapolis. They were greeted with hearty cheers, as in those days the flag always was, for we had learned to love it then as we never did before. The guns of Sumter gave the Stars and Stripes a meaning and a beauty which it had not...
